

Here's your excuse to spend even more time on Snapchat. Praise be!

GETTY By ELISA Jan 27, 2015

Good news, humans who can't go more than five minutes without checking Snapchat: Your favorite app just introduced a change designed to make it even more addictive.

Snapchat today announced Discover, a new feature that puts the most important news and stories of the day just one screen away from your BFF's selfies. When you open the app, swipe left of the regular "Stories" screen, and you'll find a ~*treasure trove*~ of news and articles from your favorite magazines and websites, including Cosmo. This quick video shows you exactly what to expect:

The Cosmo team will handpick the best stories from Cosmopolitan.com and deliver them to you by 8 a.m. everyday, so you can catch up on everything that matters before you even get out of bed.

The articles live for only 24 hours before disappearing forever — this is Snapchat, land of self-destruction — but that just gives you another reason to check in on the daily.

To discover Discover for yourself (JOKE!), make sure you have the latest update of Snapchat installed on your phone, then swipe away.
