

Pass and Play – Suffering

You are given a quote. You have to give one argument for or against and then pass the sheet to your opponent. They have to come up with a counter-argument to your argument before passing back to you. The last person to think of an argument, that cannot be counter-argued, wins. Don't forget to use the P-E-E (point, evidence, explain) chain for each argument!

"The main purpose of Buddhism is to stop human suffering."	_____ _____ _____	_____ _____ _____

Challenge Yourself!

Arrange the arguments according to which you think a religious devotee would say was the most significant to least significant. Explain your choices.

Extension:

Have a go at a 15 mark d) style question using the quote given to you by your teacher. Ask your friend to proof read it and mark it according to the level descriptors while you read theirs. Ask your teacher for a copy of the level descriptor.
